The Sandals Foundation... Making a Real Difference in the Caribbean

In today's current economic climate most companies have gone into survival mode: Staff cuts, mandatory furloughs and other cost-cutting measures. Most companies have "circled the wagons" to wait out these difficult economic times. It was, therefore, very refreshing for me to have the opportunity to attend the recent launch of the Sandals Foundation.

For the past three decades, Sandals has been quietly giving back to the communities in which its resorts operate. The company understands that working to enhance the quality of life in the communities in which they exist is mutually beneficial. And one that brings rewards that far exceed monetary gains as Adam Stewart, CEO of Sandals and the Sandals Foundation explained during the launch of the foundation on March 18th in Jamaica. "As the CEO of Sandals Resorts International I am afforded the opportunity to travel the Caribbean and the world. I see opportunities every day of life, I see a chance to make differences in people's lives and help play a major part in global sustainability through our region, the Caribbean."

The impetus for the public coming-out party for the Sandals Foundation was born out of the success of its current programs. According to Stewart, "We receive countless requests pleading for help everyday and we help wherever possible. But it is so frustrating to know that we can't do it all." Thus the Sandals Foundation was created to enhance awareness of these needs among Sandals corporate partners and resort guests.

Information about the Foundation is displayed prominently in all of the resorts' lobbies with information about the charity and its local projects. Every Thursday is Foundation Day at the resorts. At all revenue areas of the resort (gift shops, spa, front desk) guests are asked to make a donation to the Foundation.

Corporate sponsors are playing an active role in the success of the Foundation's programs. I saw first hand how one sponsor, Sesame Street is working to make a difference. I am sure most agents are aware that Beaches resorts feature Sesame Street characters at their resorts, but what you probably don't know is that these characters also go out into the community's schools to promote education. I went with the Foundation to a preschool in the Whitehouse area of Jamaica for a surprise visit from Grover. As you can see here in the picture the kids were delighted with his visit. During Grover's time with the kids, a volunteer Sandals staff member entertained and educated the children on the environment around them. Additionally, all the kids were given a book and crayons and a coloring book at the end of his visit.

This is just one example of the many ways that the Sandals Foundation is giving back to the communities. Other projects include: working with small town of Beaston Springs to develop a 100% organic farming community, creating marine sanctuaries in front of all its resorts, supporting animal shelters, building schools, Christmas toy drives and the list goes on. It is important to note that most of these efforts are made possible by the 100's of Sandals employees who volunteer their time to work in the communities.

We can all take a lesson from the efforts of the Sandals Foundation. Even if we don't have the resources to start our own charitable organization, we can support the ones that others have established that will have a direct benefit to your clients.

AIRWAYS القطرية

Downside of Short-Term Goals

My colleague, Joe Sharkey of the New York Times recently reiterated figures from the Fire Sales now taking place among both domestic and international carriers.

Here are a few samples that showed up at press time: Air Europa's $159 roundtrip to Madrid (Oct. 29-Dec.13) was posted to celebrate the start of its daily nonstop flights from JFK and $401 roundtrip from June 1-24; or $158 roundtrip between Denver and Houston on Frontier; $548 from Delta between New York and Dublin; roundtrip between NY and Milan on Alitalia cost $349; and roundtrip NY to Australia on Qantas for $598.

But these rates are bound to disappear in the wink of an eye with the exception of the Air Europa deal, which has actually set the dates to cover shoulder and off-season. Agents know how to distinguish transparent prices and those figures that do not include taxes, fuel surcharges and the new screen, a choice of amenities to pad that bill. Much of this takes place through online agencies that present a base bill in a few categories and a list of choices that add something to that base price, thus delivering new cash to carriers.

When I interview tour operators they complain about late bookers and how an operator is at a disadvantage to deliver the best deals to their clients if the client procrastinates in decisions, bringing the booking window closer and closer to departure. Obtaining good air deals depends on good planning or at least planning 30 days out; however, with amazing short-term sales out there, re-training clients to plan ahead is a never-ending battle. Experienced agents may want to use this wacky moment to develop real relationships with solid consolidators whose inside track rates will often top whatever one sees in a daily newspaper. By the same token, the short-term Fire Sales put everyone at a disadvantage – airlines spend millions to advertise the sales, consumers who are on the fence deciding on vacation expenditures are frustrated as the sale deals emerge and vanish and agents are pursuing those elusive clients. A tough time to re-educate those consumers who swear they know so much.

At the same time, some operators say their own airline partners discount tickets sold to consumers while keeping prices higher among wholesalers and retailers thus undercutting their best distribution channels, but this is an old story.

Hoopla over Hvar

Lesser-known corners of Croatia are coming to light, too. At just 112 square miles, the Island of Hvar, a veritable paradise of lush fruit, vineyards, olive orchards, lavender fields and fishing villages, has recently caught the eye of several influential media outlets. Chosen as one of The 53 Places to Go in 2008 in the New York Times' travel supplement, Hvar ranked 11th in the list of world-class itineraries. The New York Times dubbed it, "the St. Tropez of Croatia" and referred to the Dalmatian Coast as a new Riviera.

Hvar is also home to the new Adriana Hotel, Croatia's first Leading Small Hotels of the World, which opened last year. Visit www.suncanihvar.com/Adriana

"St. Tropez, Majorca, Aspen, and other glamour destinations don't have anything on Hvar, the glitzy Croatian playground patronized by celebrities, the idle rich, and the average Joe tourist who wants to find out what the Hvar hoopla is about," writes Frommer's website.

Hvar is a lush and sunny island claiming more hours of sunshine than any other spot in Croatia. Of course, the nearby island of Brac reports getting almost as much sun, but who's counting. Hvar's principal towns include Hvar Town, Stari Grad, Vrboska, Jelsa, and Sucuraj.

According to UNESCO, "Stari Grad Plain is a cultural landscape that has remained practically intact since it was first colonized by Ionian Greeks from Paros in the 4th century BC. The landscape features ancient stone walls and trims, or small stone shelters, and bears testimony to the ancient geometrical system of land division used by the ancient Greeks, the chora, which has remained virtually intact over 24 centuries."

Other cultural UNESCO World Heritage sites in Croatia are the Episcopal Complex of the Euphrasian Basilica in the Historic Centre of Porec (1997); the Historic City of Trogir (1997); the Historical Complex of Split with the Palace of Diocletian (1979); the Old City of Dubrovnik dubbed The

After more than a half dozen years of strong growth, visitor arrivals from the U.S. continue to reflect a wide array of special interest and educated travelers who have been to Europe more than once.

Tour operators are now re-assessing their product lines and adding Croatia in 2009. Packaging will only add more appeal to Croatia as visits will be more affordable at a juncture when even high-end clients are more cost and value-conscious. Among operators that have added Croatia to their 2009 product lines are Tauck Tours and GAP Adventures.

Tauck's Croatia selections visit several UNESCO sites, spending eight days in Croatia starting with Dubrovnik and concludes in Zagreb with visits to Hvar with a stay at the Adriana, a tour of Stari Grad, and Krka National Park, Split as well as a walk through the forest to reach Skradinski Falls. GAP Adventures' mission is to provide sustainable travel opportunities and was established in 1990 with travel to Latin America. GAP's eight-day Croatia Highlights also begins with Dubrovnik and concludes in Opatija on the Istrian Peninsula. Culture Centers and Festivals

Both the compelling Dubrovnik, and energetic, cosmopolitan Zagreb could literally compete on the culture front as both offer insatiable culture vultures much to savor.

The Dubrovnik Summer Festival is celebrating its 60th anniversary and is one of the best-known annual events in Croatia. The 47-day festival takes place each year from July 10 to August 25, gathering artists from all over the world, as more than 70 open-air venues transform Dubrovnik into one big stage. Ticketing is available online. Visit www.dubrovnik-festival.hr

New to Dubrovnik's hotel inventory is Importanne Resorts, which now counts four luxury hotels in Dubrovnik, including the Villa Elita, one of Croatia's most luxurious. Other member properties include Importanne Suites, Hotel Ariston and Hotel Neptun. Prices in April run from about $145 for a standard double to about $410 for a superior room with a to-die-for view of the Adriatic and Dubrovnik, a 10-minute taxi ride away. About 16 miles southeast of Dubrovnik is Cavtat, once a Greek settlement, its town was established by the Illyrians and later fell under both Greek and Roman rule. While the town center harbors the Rector's Palace, the Bogišić Library, the Baroque Church of St. Nicholas, the Franciscan monastery and the Kaboga palace, the real riches are under water. Cavtat Bay is home to the richest site of amphora from Roman shipwrecks in the 3rd and 4th centuries some of which is visible from the Museum Under the Sea in Cavtat's archeological zone.

The most popular cultural event here is the Cavtat Summer festival while the major local event is the Day of Our Lady of the Snows (Aug. 5).

There is no way to ever be bored in Zagreb as its permanent and revolving exhibitions in its museums and galleries continue year round. Visit www.zagreb-touristinfo.hr

Located in the Upper Town, visitors will find Klovicevi Dvori Gallery. Built inside a Jesuit Monastery constructed in the 17th century; it is part of a large complex enclosed by an irregular square atrium.

The Museum of Mimara is one of the most surprising mixes of objects worth seeing. Housed in an 1895 neo-renaissance building that is worth visiting just to see it. The collection covers a wide range of periods including objects from Ancient Egypt, Mesopotamia, Persia, India, and Inca and Pre-Inca South American as well as an extensive European glass collection.

The Museum for Arts and Crafts, or Muzej za umjetnost i obrt, focuses on objets d'arte that once belonged to the nobility. Be prepared to see some lavish examples of how the rich and famous once lived. An exhibit of nearly 200 house clocks remains on display through June 15.

The Croatian Ministry of Tourism recently designated Djurdjevac or the Rooster Town set in northwest Croatia, as the winner of a national contest for Europe's tourist destinations of excellence.

According to legend, when the townspeople were out of ammunition in a battle with the Turks, they defended themselves with old roosters or a 'picok' shot from cannons. When the Turks saw this, they thought Djurdjevac citizens were too rich and powerful to be defeated so they retreated. Since then, the people of the region have been called 'Picoki' and have been commemorating their victory since 1968 with the three-day 'Picokijada' Festival in June re-enacting the legendary battle.

Varazdin, about 60 miles of Zagreb is one of the most important tourist destinations of Northern Croatia, but is best noted for its classical music events such as Varazdin Baroque Evenings – one of the greatest musical events in Croatia beginning of October. Other important events are the International Festival of Wind Orchestras, and the Days of the Book in October. Croatia: A Will to Refresh and Preserve

By Maria Lisella

JAX FAX spoke with Nena Komarica, Director of the Croatian National Tourist Office based in New York. Since Croatia declared independence from the former Yugoslavia in 1991, its tourism star has catapulted higher than ever anticipated. Komarica addresses the need to preserve and keep historic places relevant for future generations and the burgeoning travel industry in Croatia.

JF: What is the key to Croatia's value for travelers in 2009?

CNTO: One of our best selling points is that we are not a mass tourism destination and Croatia remains very affordable as we have yet to adapt the euro and continue to use Croatian currency, the kuna, which remains at a good exchange rate for North American visitors. (At presstime the exchange rate was $1 to 5.8 kuna, a 10 percent increase over last year.)

Zagreb also has a city card that makes moving around for visitors cheaper and most of our museums have free admission or very minimal charges to enter.

JF: Are there any public/private initiatives that would benefit travelers in 2009?

CNTO: We are currently discussing marketing alliances with hotel companies and regions, a series possibly on the local and national levels to stress affordability especially this year since we would like Croatia to stay among the most desirable European destinations where visitors can get value for their money.

JF: Croatia focuses a lot on culture and preservation.

CNTO: We try to preserve examples of former lifestyles for instance, for future generations not really just for tourists to visit; it is part of keeping our heritage intact.

As an example, in the Croatian region of Slavonia, in the northern part of the country, there is the village of Stara Kapela, which consists of 17 houses.

For a long time Stara Kapela was nearly a ghost town as it dates back to 1275 and in modern times, the oldest inhabitants are in their mid-80s and older years old while there have been no new inhabitants born there for the past 15 years. But the younger generation is taking steps to rescue the village.

Many young people have volunteered their labor, are taking the initiative to repopulate the area, build homes true to the authentic style of old Slavonia and preserve the village. Today, Stara Kapela is a candidate for EU funding.

Just outside Zagreb visitors can take an excursion to Medvedgrad, a medieval city-fortress that dates from the 13th Century, abandoned after the earthquake in 1590. The renovation of Medvedgrad started in 1974. A visit to Medvedgrad offers a magnificent view of Zagreb.

Above Zagreb is a park called Medvednica, which includes the Miner's Garden, a reconstructed silver mine that dates from the 17th Century.

JF: What about the preservation of nature?

CNTO: Croatia counts eight national parks and 12 nature preserves, some of which are involved in programs to repopulate or protect nearly extinct species. Of these, Plitvice Lakes has been a UNESCO site since 1979.

The newest green UNESCO site that has been added to the list is Stari Grad Plain on the island of Hvar (see feature).

JF: Are there any signs of a green movement in Croatia?

CNTO: Yes, we are working on the preservation of national parks as I mentioned, and also trying to expand green areas in the cities, especially in Zagreb, which is one of the greenest cities in Europe as the city is woven with parks throughout and is also surrounded by parkland.

Recently, new regulations have expanded the pedestrian areas to encourage the use of public transportation, commuters as well as tourists can travel free of charge into three of the city's busiest train stops to discourage the use of cars in town.

JF: Any major new developments for special interest markets?

CNTO: Active special interests such as bicycling, canoeing on Croatian rivers, walking and hiking in our parks and on the islands are gaining popularity. Spiritual journeys are growing, and the largest wellness center in Europe opened in Sept. 2008: Novi Vinodolski, is a Thalasso Wellness Center not far from Rijeka. Gastronomy is attracting new interest, therefore we are promoting our food and wine products. For instance, our Istrian prosciutto (Istarski prsut) has protected status and its production includes being air-dried using only sea salt in the brining process and to be authentic, it can only be produced inland on Istria, no more than eight miles from the coast.

Cyprus: Island of Faith

By Maria Lisella

While Cyprus is indeed the third largest island in the Mediterranean, and annually attracts some 2.5 million tourists worldwide, the number of arrivals from the U.S. hovers around 40,000 per year; not surprisingly, the British top the list of visitors as England dominated the island for some many years. What these statistics say is that the rest of the world has clearly discovered what makes Cyprus special, while Americans are still getting to know the place.

Elements of Discovery

Cyprus is more than ready to be discovered as it just debuted a new international airport at Pafos. Getting to Cyprus from the U.S. is somewhat stymied by the lack of nonstop service to the island, however, Cyprus Airways flies from most European gateways and operates nine flights a day from Athens to Larnaca, and many more from London, Amsterdam and Frankfurt. At the same time, a new airport is under construction in Larnaka.

Limassol harbor is undergoing a major facelift as more and more cruise lines add Cyprus to their ports-of-call. Azamara, Royal Caribbean, Celebrity, Costa, Holland America, MSC, Oceania, Silversea all stop at Limassol. Mediterranean Cruises (previously Monarch) sails into Cyprus weekly; passengers can disembark, spend a few days in Cyprus and take the next sailing to the following destination. "From Cyprus," says Tasoula Manaridis, Director of the Cyprus Tourist Organization in New York, "we have cruises to Israel, Egypt, the Greek Islands, Syria and Lebanon with Louis Cruises." Charis Papacharalambous, the new General Manager at Cyprus-based Louis Cruise Lines, adds "Itineraries out of Cyprus vary daily making it is a terrific hub from which to combine with Syria, Lebanon and Egypt."

"We are not projecting an increase in the first half of 2009 from the U.S.," says Manaridis, "but we believe bookings will pick up during the second half of the year." One reason for her optimism is that Cyprus has received strong interest from tour operators who are adding new programs to their brochures. "We are currently working with new tour operators such as Group IST for religious programs to Cyprus and Central Holidays," she added.

At the same time, Homeric Tours, Crown Peters and Select International all list several programs to Cyprus, some of which highlight faith tourism. Additionally, all three companies include options to extend stays to Cyprus' nearby neighbors: Egypt, Jordan, Israel and Greece.

"We are concentrating our efforts on the religious market which we believe will be affected less from the economic recession. There is a lot of potential within that market segment," says Manaridis.

One of the most important historical and faith-related events in Cypriot history was the visit of St. Paul, the Apostle in 45AD to preach Christianity with the Cypriot Apostle Barnabas. This event is the cornerstone for many tour programs as participants visit Byzantine UNESCO churches and monasteries on the island.

Even within the capital itself, Lefkosia (Nicosia), there is a compact walking route through the Old City that tours churches located on narrow, winding streets, ideal and picturesque for walking. A good place to begin is The Cathedral of Agios Ioannis to Theologou, located next to the Archbishop Palace for a look at its rich collection of frescoes from the 18th and 19th centuries. The next stop would be the Byzantine Museum of the "Archbishop Makarios III" Foundation, next to the Cathedral. Links to St. Paul the Apostle dot the island. Visitors to Geroskipou will find the second church of Cyprus with its five domes as well as significant frescoes dedicated to gia Paraskevi and, in Acheleia, there is the Church of Agios Theodosios with frescoes which date back to the 13th century, one of which depicts the Apostles Peter and Paul. In Lemesos (Limassol) the religious route starts from the Cyprus Medieval Museum; its exhibits cover a time period of approximately 1,500 years.

Astoria, NY-based Crown Peters features Cyprus in two all-inclusive programs, but can also add Cyprus to any other program. Both are eight nights and priced from $1,950 and $1,955 per person double for Crown Beauty I and Crown Beauty II respectively. Crown Beauty I starts in Larnaca but one travels to

So, You Think You Know Belgium?

By Maria Lisella

In a recent interview for Convene magazine, Annette Choynacki, Director of the Belgian Tourist Office for North America counters the challenges of today's economic crisis by focusing on new and attractive marketing proposals, illustrating Brussels and French-speaking Belgium as, more than ever, a destination of culture and fun. "With nine direct flights a day to Brussels from the U.S. and a 90-minute train ride from Paris, agents should convince their clients to escape to Belgium for something different," she says.

From the historical city of Brussels to romantic Namur, Belgium offers savvy travelers an experience rich in culture and relaxation. What is more, it can be affordable as most hotels in Brussels offer deals on weekends and in July and August. Plus, Brussels and French-speaking Belgium list special rates and packages at www.visitbelgium.com/special.htm.

The Heart of the City

Everyone's favorite place in Brussels is the Grand' Place, one of 35 UNESCO World Heritage Sites in Belgium. This centuries-old square sits at the heart of the city. Here visitors will find the purely Gothic Hotel de Ville, the neo-Gothic Maison du Roi, restored medieval and Baroque guild halls, cafes, and museums saluting chocolatiers and beer brewers. The Galeries Royale St. Hubert, the oldest glass arcade in Europe, is also right here, sparkling with jewelry shops, clothing boutiques and cafes.

Come summer, the Grand' Place is even grander with the arrival of the sumptuous and stately Ommegang Pageant in July 2009. The procession fills the square, with Belgians dressed as nobles, guildsmen and jesters, on foot or horseback, on parade from the Sablon to the Grand' Place, re-enacting the glorious entry of Charles V into Brussels in 1549. The Grand' Place transforms into a spectacular floral carpet. Tip: the best viewing for this floral display is the City Hall balcony (9 a.m.-1 p.m.)

Surrealism in the City

The new Magritte Museum will open its doors on June 2, 2009 in Brussels. Located on the Place Royale, walking distance from the Grand' Place, the Musical Instrument Museum and the Royal Palace, the museum will hold 200 works, the largest collection of Magritte paintings, plus archival material, letters written by the painter, photographs and drawings. Opening hours will be Tuesdays to Sundays, 9.30 a.m.-5 p.m., late night opening on Wed. until 8 p.m. Visit www.montdesarts.be

High on the entertainment chart is always the Brussels Jazz Marathon featuring 125 free concerts, performed by some 450 musicians scheduled for May 2009. Big bands and famous soloists play in the squares, while smaller groups are on tap in bars and taverns. Visit www.brusselsjazzmarathon.be

Also in Brussels, check out Les nuits du botanique Rock Festival in May 2009, www.botanique.be. Of course, classical music is always in the air, most particularly during the Festival of Wallonia, when from June to October, The Royal Orchestra of Wallonia, orchestras and soloists perform in castles, abbeys and churches of this southern region.

Step Outside of Town

Within an hour of Brussels is the Liège-Guillemin Station about ready to fling open its doors. Designed by famous architect, Santiago Calatrava, known for his work on the new terminal of the Bilbao Airport, will link a host of European cities, such as Brussels, Paris and Cologne. Just under an hour from Brussels, Liège, is the largest city in French-speaking Belgium. A Liège highlight is the Grand Curtius Museum combining the collections of the arms museum, glass museum and religious art museum. Prince-Bishops' Palace and the Church of St. Jacques are must-sees. www.liege.be

Beyond Brussels in Namur, the Verdure Rock Festival held under the stars in the amphitheater of the Citadel, June 27 2009, www.verdur-rock.be

This year's Audi Jazz Festival takes place from September to December in various Belgian cities and features international groups performing jazz, blues, and world music, avant-garde and hip-hop. Visit www.audijazz.be

An experienced team staffs the Belgian Tourist Office who can provide agents with all the necessary information to ensure that clients have a topnotch experience in Belgium. From presentations to brochures, the tourist office will also assist agents to create itineraries. Among the long list of well-developed programs around special interests are: Art and Architecture, Beer Lovers, Chocolate Lovers, Belfries and Beguinages, Family Fun, Castles and Gardens, Gay Travel, Jewish Heritage, War Sites, Green Belgium and Nightlife.

Finland Racks Up Cultural UNESCO sites

On January 1st, 2009, Rauma (population 39,000), situated on Finland's southwest coast, became a town of two UNESCO World Heritage sites. In Europe and elsewhere in the world, there are only a handful of comparable (cultural) towns. Rauma first made it on to the list of UNESCO World Heritage sites in 1991. It was then that the very centre of the town, the old wooden house district called Old Rauma, was selected as Finland's first ever World Heritage location. This idyllic and lively district was chosen for the list of valuable cultural destinations as one of the Nordic countries' most extensive areas of old wooden housing. The district, which covers almost 30 hectares, has about 600 buildings, mainly dating from the 18th and 19th centuries. About 800 people currently live in Old Rauma, and the area is also home to more than a hundred special shops and significant sights. For information, E-mail matkailu@rauma.fi

Comic Camel Relief in Egypt

By Phyllis Meras Cocroft

Just back from Egypt, but sadly, I neither rode a camel nor climbed a pyramid. I could have done the former, but the price was high and I had forgotten how much fun it was.

As for climbing the 450-foot-high Pyramid of Cheops, ascending it on foot is no longer allowed. However, I did scramble up in 1958, thereby guaranteeing that I would return one day. It was well worth the effort since, as promised, I returned but not to climb.

This time, I have done other interesting things: I sailed on the Nile in a felucca and on a cruise boat; visited the remains of the Temples of Abu Simbel and Philae as well as Luxor and Karnak and the Valley of the Kings.

Although, since my return, there has been the first bombing in Cairo in three years, I felt safe on my trip. There were armed guards on my sightseeing bus and boat trips, tourist police in evidence everywhere, and all luggage passed through X-ray at major hotels.

From that first trip 51 years ago, I happily remembered the excitement of climbing up and running down the Pyramid of Cheops and how it felt to ride a camel's hump.

A Camel Named Christopher Columbus

My companion then was a Greek who lived in Cairo. We had met on a boat from Greece to Egypt and he invited me to see the pyramids. We had taken a bus and as soon as we arrived, a friendly camel nosed up to me. I had never been face to face with a camel before, with its full lips quivering toward my receding ones. I drew back, but, politely, and my notes of long ago inform me that I had said "Cute camel" to the animal's owner in his long, flowing galabiyyah.

"Cute camel is Christopher Columbus, Christopher Columbus gives nice ride to beautiful American ladies. Your lady ride Cute Camel Christopher Columbus?" the camel's master asked my friend Theodore.

Christopher Columbus had then made another overture, nuzzling my shoulder this time. And so I had been seduced into taking a camel ride.

Christopher Columbus sat down so I could climb onto his hump. Then he had closed his eyes. I had waited for him to wake up. But his impatient owner had shaken his fist at Christopher Columbus. He had danced in the sand in front of him until, finally, Christopher Columbus had laboriously raised his rump and then his forequarters, and we had begun to rock 'n'roll across the sand. After just a minute or two, however, he collapsed in a folding chair sort of way with me still on him.

AFRICA & THE MIDDLE EAST

"Please, your highness," his owner murmured, "You can see, beautiful blue-eyed lady, that Christopher Columbus is a very hungry camel. That is why he cannot give you a proper ride, so for the love of Allah and Mohammed and all the prophets, have you money for Christopher Columbus' food"? I came up with a handful of French francs, my notes tell me, and the camel owner murmured they would hardly pay for a sugar lump for Christopher as he led him away.

By then, Theodore had found a guide who said his name was Mohammed Hassan and that he had been climbing pyramids since he was three days old. Theodore hired him to take us to the top of Cheops. Mohammed took my hand in his hot, crusty one and began to haul me up the pyramid steps. Since pyramid steps were never meant to be climbed and, actually, were covered with a smooth coating, they are far apart. It took us half an hour to reach the top. We rested there for 15 minutes before starting our descent.

When we reached the bottom, Mohammed Hassan said, since we were such a lovely young couple, he hoped, for the sake of Allah and Mohammed and all the prophets, that we would pay him well because he was 50 years old and it was hard climbing up and down all day.

I recalled all of these details on my recent visit as I stood at the foot of the Pyramid of Cheops and saw it soaring above my head. I looked around at the camels, but none nuzzled my nose even though their owners kept asking if I didn't want a ride. I felt they wanted too much money since their camels were non-nuzzling, so I declined.

But in any case, I did not want to dislodge those initial memories from the past. How glad I am that Theodore and Mohammed Hassan had insisted, in that long ago time, on that climb to the pyramid top that assured my return to Egypt this time.

Accommodations-New and Transformed

Then, I was impecunious, and do not remember where I laid my head. On this trip, in Cairo, I enjoyed the 617-room Conrad Cairo with its gym and swimming pools, its spacious dining rooms, its views onto the Nile, and the new Intercontinental Cairo CityStars just a 10-minute ride from the airport with its health club and spa, its obelisk and palm trees and sphinxes in the lobby, and its enormous, multi-storied attached mall.

I paid a visit to Cairo's largest hotel, the 1,124-room Cairo Marriott, built around the palace with inlaid floors and golden ceilings constructed in 1869 for the visit of Empress Eugenie of France who came to see the opening of the Suez Canal. It lies on the quieter, tree-shaded island of Zamalek in the middle of the Nile. I also stopped on Zamalek to see the homey, moderately priced 167-room Golden Tulip Flamenco Hotel. The riverfront Nile Hotel is about to be renovated and transformed into a Ritz Carlton.

I sailed the Nile from Aswan to Luxor aboard the 62-cabin TuYa, one of nearly 300 boats of all sizes cruising the world's longest river. A recent addition to the Nile Dahabeya fleet of vessels with two sails as well as an engine is the Sonesta Dahabeya, a six-cabin, two-suite deluxe boat.

In Luxor, the elegant 19th-century Winter Palace where Agatha Christie and Noel Coward were once guests (now a Sofitel property) has undergone extensive renovations and has just reopened. Two modern Nile-side properties there are the Sonesta St. George, which has just added 116-room Royal Club floors and the 260-room Hilton Luxor Resort & Spa that reopened in November after a stunning redesign by a Singapore decorator. In Aswan, the Old Cataract Hotel – also once frequented by Agatha Christie – is now closed for renovations.

For those contemplating their first trip to Egypt, consider the camel ride, but don't step on the Pyramids.

Tel Aviv: New Revelations in a 'White City'

By Denise Dube

It's hard to imagine that today's Tel Aviv was just a lifeless heap of sand 100 years ago. A World Cultural Heritage site, it is also a vibrant and thriving city, growing and changing every day. Now, if you want to see sand you'll have to visit the beach.

No, it isn't Jerusalem, and that's just fine with Tel Avivians. They'd rather be known as Israel's cultural and entertainment capital, one with a huge accent on business and finance, making it Israel's economic center. Though they toil through the day they like to party at night. It isn't unusual to see throngs of people waiting in line just to get into the city's latest hotspot nightclub. One wonders how they have the energy to get up and work the next day to make Tel Aviv such an economic success.

In 2003 UNESCO dubbed Tel Aviv the "The White City" because of its international Bauhaus architectural heritage

It's in the Neve Tzedek district, only a few steps from the Dan and David Intercontinental hotels. Both of those are between the financial and business districts, so you're getting the best of three worlds just by walking.

Those looking for history can grab a cab and visit Jaffa's 4,000-year-old fishing and shipping port. Later you can have a great meal nearby at Cordelia's, run by Israel's celebrity chef, Nir Zook.

Still hungry? Visit Hazan's, an Arab restaurant with the best Shawarma you've ever tasted. Chicken, vegetables and a special sauce are stuffed into warm, soft, fresh pita bread. Guaranteed, you will want another. While you're eating, listen for the echo of the mezzin's daily prayer calls from the nearby mosque.

Museum buffs shouldn't miss Ilana Goor's museum in Old Jaffa. It's also her home. The multi-floor building holds her and other artists' work along with a rich history of Goor's life. Helena Rubinstein's contemporary art pavilion will satisfy those with different tastes. The Ben-Gurion museum offers a glimpse into David Ben-Gurion's past. There are about two-dozen noteworthy museums in Tel Aviv, enough to satisfy everyone.

Affordable Designer Shopping

After you've been satiated with food and history visit the galleries and shops. Since the designers are new and upcoming, everything, including jewelry, is affordable – right now.

Dizengoff Street, Kikar Hamedina and Gan Hachashmal are the hottest shopping districts in Tel Aviv. But the young and chic must find their way to Gan Hachashmal, a developing stretch of designer stores that took over the former "red light" district. The buildings are a bit shoddy and in need of a coat of paint. But it's what's inside that counts. Young and talented artists are creating designer dresses, handmade leather purses and shoes, and trendy jewelry. Like any emerging gem, it's a given that a few years from now the outer glass will shine, the paint won't be peeling.

Wine Tasting in Town

This is the year to take the trip and experience Tel Aviv. Officials have scheduled an international film festival, wind-surfing contests, symphonic performances, various marathons and a host of other activities to commemorate this centennial birthday, one that is steeped in the sweat of 10 determined Russian immigrants seeking a homeland. In the late 1880s they bought about 850 acres of dirt near the Jaffa's ancient port and called it Rishon LeZion. Water was scarce and life was difficult. A few years later Baron Edmond James de Rothschild took over and found water deep in the dusty soil. Tel Aviv-Yafo was born in 1909. Tree by tree, brick by brick and vine by vine, Tel Aviv, which means Hill of Spring, became a thriving metropolis with boutique and fine hotels, exquisite restaurants, and vineyards that now produce award-winning wines.

Accommodations

Those who go must stay at either the Dan Hotel or the David Intercontinental. They are two of the best and most luxurious spots to park your luggage. Both sit along the sandy Mediterranean beach. Since the temperature is mild, even in the winter, many surf the high frothy waves – even in December and January. Peek through a hotel window and you are sure to see black dots flying from the waves onto the shore. No, they aren't birds; they are determined wet-suited winter surfers.

The entire city encompasses about 30 miles or 52 kilometers and is divided into districts, each with a distinct feel and flavor. Even more important: Tel Aviv is only about 19 miles from the airport, making it easy to get in and out of the city.

Chile

The Land of Extremes

CHILE NTO

Chile is home to some of the most extraordinary encounters one can have in nature on the planet. Torres del Paine National Park, for instance, arguably offers the most dramatic mountain ranges on earth, creating striking natural amphitheatres and granite-enclosed valleys across the captivating landscape. The mountains pierce the sky at almost 10,000 feet and the area boasts abundant wildlife.

Clients can experience one of the last true wild places while on a tour through Chile. Although Chile is often referred to as a land of contrasts, it would be more accurate to call it the land of extremes: while Arica basks in tropical heat at its tip, Punta Arenas shivers at its icy tail just short of Antarctica.

The variety of climate and eco-systems found across Chile offer a wide range of opportunities for active vacationers.

There are 50 volcanoes, offering rare climbing opportunities. Visitors will be spoiled while running white-water rapids or paddling through fjords carved by ice. Adventure seekers can hike, bike, ski, surf, swim, horseback ride and even paraglide from deserts to ice fields; stargaze alongside top international observatories, experience the ancient mysteries of Rapa Nui (Easter Island) or be a part of the city life in Santiago or Valparaíso. Chile boasts numerous thermal facilities, from rustic pools to elegant five-star thermal resorts where visitors can soak in a hot spring, thanks to the large geographical faults and high geothermal activity, which explains the existence of such sources of thermal waters.

Visitors can also enjoy a less strenuous adventure, continuing their journey with a discovery of famous Chilean wines. The country boasts 11 wine routes that travel through picturesque villages, traditional wineries and breathtaking landscapes that will bring wine lovers closer to the traditions of rural Chile.

Chile has been designated with five UNESCO World Heritage sites since 1995 (Easter Island to Sewell in 2006). Known as the "city of stairs," Sewell, a former mining center flanked by the Andes mountains, was declared a World Heritage Site for its peculiar architecture. Salitre Mines of Santa Laura and Humberstone also made the UNESCO list, as well as 16 churches of Chiloe located in the most southern archipelago of Chile, as well as the historic center of the cosmopolitan city of Valparaiso.

Festive Peru

Perú celebrates some 3,000 festivals a year. Most of the events are held in honor of a patron saint and are part of the Christian calendar adopted in colonial times, although many expressions of worship have since been blended with the magical beliefs of ancient forms of worship.

As a magnet for spiritual journeys and pilgrims, Perú is a magical spot that includes one of the richest biodiversities on Earth, and is a mosaic of cultures. Peru has converted 13% of its territory into Protected Natural Areas.

It boasts ten thousand years of history that can be surveyed by visiting 180 museums and historical places. While Peru inevitably evokes images of Machu Picchu and the Inca empire, the country is also riddled with archaeological sites that are vestiges of even more ancient times.

Religious festivals occur alongside pagan celebrations dating back to ancestral myths in native communities in the jungle, as well as dozens of festivals created over the following centuries.

Saints, Sinners and Pilgrims

May is traditionally known as Mary's Month in Catholic communities. Here, the pilgrims cross the Arequipa desert to worship the Virgin of Purification or Virgin of Chapi, which is a residual influence of the missionaries. Pilgrims carry rocks of different sizes they will leave before Chapi, making the so-called apachetas, symbolizing the devout's sins. In a night-long wake, the image of the miraculous Virgin is surrounded by candles to then leave in procession. There are also fireworks and typical foods. About 50 miles southeast of Arequipa, there is frequent bus service although devout pilgrims usually trek the whole way.

About 200 miles from Lima also in May, thousands of pilgrims arrive to view and pray to the image of the Crucified Lord, painted on the skirts of the Shalacoto hill. Some old rites to worship water, earth and rocks have survived in this celebration. On the central day a solemn Mass is celebrated in Quechua and then the believers drop their "Letter to God," requesting miracles or thanking favors granted.

During the first week of June, visitors will be delighted to happen upon the largest pilgrimage of all indigenous nations of the Americas. More than 10,000 people arrive in Sinakara, at the foot of the Ausangate mountain to pay homage to a painting of Child Jesus. The ascent of a group of strong Queros to the snow-capped summit to seek the Star of the Snow (Qoyllur Rit'i) in the mountain's heart is full of symbolism. They will take large blocks of ice on their shoulders back to their Quechua communities to water their lands with sacred water.

June 24 marks Inti Raymi, the Sun's festivity, which coincides with the winter solstice and the harvest season. The Sacsayhuaman fortress is the stage for the ceremony, following a detailed script, including the sacrifice of two llamas to tell the future. The Inca, who urge the authorities in Cuzco's main square to govern well, presides over the ceremony. At dusk, the merry-making begins in earnest. Visit www.emufec.gob.pe

Worth noting in Lima, although not a colorful or grandiose expression, is the feast day of Saint Rose of Lima, the name that made Isabel Flores de Oliva famous. She was a pious Lima woman of the XVII century with great religious inclination and given to serving the sick. The Vatican named her Patroness of the Americas and the Philippines. The faithful visit her sanctuary in downtown Lima in hopes of obtaining miracle cures. On this date, visitors to the hermitage drop letters into the well where she dropped the key to her cilice. Set in the Sanctuary in downtown Lima, the date is August 30.

Infrastructure

PromPeru reports that the country has an inventory of 7,646 lodgings for a total of 229,886 beds; 26 of these are five-star, 26 are four-star; and 487 fall into the three-star categories. Additionally, 927 two star properties exist; and 42 lodges some of which are luxurious.

Peru also counts 14 airports, 10 of which can accommodate international flights: Lima, Arequipa, Chiclayo, Pisco, Pucallpa, Iquitos, Cuzco, Trujillo, Tacna and Juliaca; 17 international carriers operate flights to Peru.

India Promises & Delivers

INDIA NTO

As the marketing theme goes, one reason to visit India in 2009 is that it promises to deliver one unforgettable journey with a "bouquet of never-before benefits." Supporting that theme and that opportunity are at least a dozen well-known companies who are cooperating to make Visit India a success and a reality this year.

Partners Pitch In

Among those "never-before-benefits" are a complimentary airline ticket aboard Air India, Jet Airways or Kingfisher Airlines; one free sightseeing tour in a city of your client's choice led by member of the Indian Assoc. of Tour Operators; one night's hotel stay free from among a wide range of properties: ITDC Ashok, Lalith Mahal Palace, Taj Hotels, ITC Welcomgroup, Park Hotels, Select Hotels, and The Lalit, Kumarakom Lake Resort and a complimentary rural eco-vacation with Karaikudi, Hodka, Naggar.

In a country as diverse and complex as India, it is not surprising to find that people reflect the rich glories of the past, the culture, traditions and values relative to geographic locations and the numerous distinctive manners, habits and food that will always remain truly Indian, according to five thousand years of recorded history.

From the eternal snows of the Himalayas to the cultivated peninsula of far South, from the deserts of the West to the humid deltas of the East, from the dry heat and cold of the Central Plateau to the cool forest foothills, Indian lifestyles clearly glorify the geography. The food, clothing and habits of an Indian differ in accordance to the place of origin. Indians believe in sharing happiness and sorrow. A festival or a celebration is never constrained to a family or a home. The whole community or neighborhood is involved in bringing liveliness to an occasion. Festivals like Diwali, Holi, Id, and Mahaveer Jayanthi are all celebrated by sharing sweets and pleasantries with family, neighbors and friends. An Indian wedding is an occasion that calls for participation of the family and friends. Similarly, neighbors and friends always help out a family in times of need. Ethnically Indians speak different languages, follow different religions, eat the most diverse varieties of food all of which add to the rich Indian culture. The beauty of the Indian people lies in the spirit of tolerance, give-and-take and a composition of cultures that can be compared to a garden of flowers of various colours and shades of which, while maintaining their own entity, lend harmony and beauty to the garden - India!

Indian Cuisine

Indian cuisine boasts of an immense variety not restricted to only curry. An authentic Indian curry is an intricate combination of a stir-fried Masala - a mixture of onion, garlic, ginger, and tomatoes; various spices and seasonings with which meat; poultry, vegetables or fish is prepared to produce a stew-type dish. Note: the word Masala also means spice. India's cuisine is wide ranging in taste, color, texture and flavor. Being so diverse geographically, each region has its own cuisine and style of preparation.

Indian cuisine, renowned for its exotic gravies seems complicated for any newcomer. The Mughlai cuisine of North differs sharply from the preparations of the south. The Wazwan style of Kashmir is luxurious but the same can be said about Bengal's Macher Jhol, Rajasthan's Dal Bati, Uttar Pradesh's Kebabs and Punjab's Sarson Ka Saag and Makki di Roti.

A well-balanced Indian meal contains all six tastes, but this cannot always be accomplished. This principle explains the use of numerous spice combinations and depth of flavor in Indian recipes. Side dishes and condiments like chutneys, curries, daals and Indian pickles and add to the overall flavor and texture of a meal and provide balance needed.

Fairs & Festivals

The colorful cultural mosaic of the Indian population has naturally given rise to a wide range of festivals and fairs - as an expression of the spirit of celebration; festivals are also vibrant interludes year round. Every season brings along new festivals, each a true celebration of the bounties of the rich traditions followed for time immemorial. The birthdays of Gods and Goddesses, saints and prophets, great historical happenings and the advent of the New Year, all find expression in colorful festivities. The same festival, though celebrated differently in the various parts of the country, exhibits an eternal harmony of the spirit of celebration. While festivals serve as an occasion to clean and decorate houses, to get together with friends and relatives and to exchange gifts, for visitors, festivals give them a chance to take a closer look at the culture, to participate in public displays and to emerge with a new understanding of a most complex culture. Visitors will often return home wanting to listen to Indian music, see films, read books or replicate that delicious daal they may have sampled somewhere in Delhi.

Welcomes Aboard NCL's Freestyle Cruising

By Joan Jenkins

One of the things that sets Norwegian Cruise Line apart from its competitors is a marketing strategy called "freestyle cruising"—meaning passengers are free to do "whatever."

We enjoyed this new concept during a 13-day Mediterranean/transatlantic voyage aboard NCL's newest ship, the 2,348-passenger Gem.

Rather than eating at assigned tables and times, guests can dine in any of the ship's restaurants, whenever they wish and with other guests or by themselves. "Freestyle" also applies to the dress code—there isn't any.

Launched in 2007, NCL's newest megaship features western Mediterranean itineraries from April through November and sets sail from New York to Florida, the Bahamas and the Caribbean from November to April.

Cabins, Restaurants, Bars and Lounges

The 93,502-ton Gem has more than 30 cabin categories in its 1,197 staterooms (542 have balconies). The most luxurious suites are a pair of 5,000-sq.-ft., three-bedroom Garden Villas. They overlook the pool deck; each includes whirlpool and steam bath. Two deluxe Owner's Suites come complete with butler and concierge service, king-size bed and terrace with hot tub.

Ten Courtyard Villas have a lap pool, hot tub, steam room, hammocks and a small gym. Eight of them feature separate bedrooms for kids. Thirty smaller suites are spacious and have special amenities. Four are Romance Suites with private balcony, queen-size bed and a small sitting area. In addition to those upgrades, your cruise-going clients can opt for standard balcony, ocean-view and interior cabins.

Among the Gem's 10 restaurants, the gourmet-caliber Grand Pacific Dining Room recalls the luxurious ambience aboard the old Matson Line ships that sailed between San Francisco and Honolulu. Alternatives include the less-formal Magenta Dining Room and the casual Blue Lagoon Diner, open 24 hours daily. Deck 12's Garden Cafe buffet is equipped with "action stations," each stocked with different selections of food. The aft deck's Great Outdoors restaurant gives passengers an additional quick-service buffet. Specialty restaurants (cover charges range $10-$25), include Cagney's Steak House, La Cuchina for Italian specialties, the Asian-fusion Orchid Garden and sushi bar featuring Chinese-Japanese-Thai dishes (with a separate Teppanyaki room for Benihana-style meals), Tequila Latin/Tapas restaurant and the haute-cuisine French Le Bistro.

Numerous bars and lounges are scattered throughout the ship. Bar Central has four interconnected bars—Malting's

Beer & Whiskey Bar, Magnum's Champagne & Wine Bar, Shaker's Martini & Cocktail Bar and Corona Cigar Club. A dance floor, dart board and pool table make the Spinnaker Lounge an afternoon and evening favorite. Topsiders and Bali Hai provide outdoor seating, while the Bliss Ultra Lounge attracts passengers to its four-lane bowling alley.

Fun Things To Do Onboard

The Yin & Yang spa offers all the standard treatments; your clients can even schedule massages in their cabins. Body Waves, open round-the-clock, is a state-of-the-art gym and fitness center equipped with 13 Precor-brand treadmills and stairclimbers, plus weights, pumping iron and two dozen stationary bicycles.

The Gem Club casino's gambling venues include more than 200 slot machines. Park West Gallery, specializing in paintings and graphics by both Old Masters and contemporary artists—Thomas Kincade among them—holds frequent auctions. Shoppers browse in the Trade Routes Boutiques. Energetic cruisers can take their pick of tennis, volleyball, basketball, golf, ping pong and shuffleboard. Plus: giant-size chess and checker boards. Also for outdoor fun, there's a 30-ft.-high rock-climbing wall, two swimming pools—one with a spiral slide as well as a kid's pool—hot tubs and a top-deck jogging track.

Like other ships in NCL's fleet, the Gem is kid-friendly. Children have their own space, namely the Tree Top Kids' Club, while teenagers hang out in the Leopard Lounge and Video Arcade. Many activities for youngsters age 2 to 17 are complimentary. Children even have their own dining area, furnished with mini-size tables and stools.

Shore Excursions

In advance of any cruise, your clients can book shore excursions by logging onto NCL's website. Our voyage included port stops in Civitavecchia (for Rome), Livorno (for Florence), Villefranche, Ajaccio (Corsica's capital) and Malaga on Spain's Andalucian coast. Several excursions were available for each port. We visited Rome and Vatican City on our own. Highlighting our ample free time in Florence, we spent two hours in the world-class Uffizi Gallery, admiring paintings by such luminaries as Michelangelo, Leonardo da Vinci, Titian, Raphael and Sandro Botticelli.

After disembarking at Villefranche on the French Riviera, we enjoyed guided touring in Monte Carlo. The famous casino is super-glitzy, suitable for the ultra-rich roulette crowd. Automobiles parked out front included (no surprise) a well-polished array of Rolls-Royce and Bentley sedans and convertibles.

In Ajaccio, we visited native-son Napoleon's birthplace, now a fascinating two-story museum and exhibition gallery. Because the ship had a day-long stopover in Spanish-coastal Malaga, passengers could opt for a popular excursion—inland to Granada and the Moor's most romantic landmark: the Alhambra palace and gardens.

Jamaica Means Business

The island of Jamaica is fast building a serious profile. Underpinning its enormously successful tourism business, Jamaica has just signed a $51 million agreement with the China Import and Export Bank to finance the Montego Bay Convention Centre in Jamaica. With an expected completion date of 2010 (or 20 months), this project is on a fast track to further buttress a shifting leisure tourism business.

Jamaica's Minister of Tourism Edmund Bartlett said, "The Convention Centre will be part of the critical infrastructure necessary to facilitate the repositioning of Jamaica as an events destination in the global tourism market."

The groundbreaking ceremony took place on Valentine's Day to begin construction of the Montego Bay Convention Centre that is being built on 35 acres of land opposite the Shoppes at Rose Hall (between the Half Moon Golf Course and Rose Hall Great House) and is aimed at strengthening Jamaica's position in the growing groups and convention markets.

Speaking at the event, Prime Minister Bruce Golding noted that Montego Bay has already added more than 2,000 rooms in the last few years, bringing its capacity to just over 11,000. Of that number, 3,760 are located along the Rose Hall corridor.

"This financing of the convention centre signals the continuation of the growing economic co-operation between both countries and of China's willingness to help Jamaica expand, grow and develop," said Prime Minister Golding. "The Centre is intended to enhance the tourist industry, to increase foreign exchange earnings and to provide additional employment for the western region of Jamaica," he added.

Poised for Growth yet Ready for 2009

At the same time, the Jamaica Tourist Board recently reported that 2008 was another year of growth for its tourism industry. The island's stopover arrivals increased by 3.9 percent, with a total of 1,769,271 visitors. Of that number, 1,150,942 of the arrivals came from the United States – representing a 1.6 percent increase from that market over 2007.

"The United States has historically been the largest source market for Jamaica's tourism," said John Lynch, Jamaica's Director of Tourism. "Though current economic hardships pose a challenge to the travel industry, we are confident that travelers from the United States will consider Jamaica's accessibility and value when considering a vacation destination in the coming year."

The number of travelers to Jamaica from the U.S. continues to remain very strong, with the U.S. making up more than 65 percent of all the island's visitors in 2008. This may dip somewhat in 2009 but the Caribbean as a region is already organizing several marketing and promotional initiatives to mitigate any slippage due to the worldwide economic crisis.

New Hotels and Attractions

With more hotel rooms and attractions coming on board, travelers will have more variety than ever when planning a Jamaican getaway.

The Riu Montego Bay opened last fall with 681 rooms; The Iberostar Rose Hall Beach Resort, Iberostar Rose Hall Suites and Iberostar Rose Hall Grand now offer 978 rooms combined. Scheduled to open in June this year is Solis the Palmyra Resort & Spa, the island's first luxury beachfront residential community, which will offer 299 guestrooms plus one-, two-, three- and four-bedroom suites, penthouses and private villas. Additionally, The Grand Palladium Jamaica Resort and Grand Palladium Lady Hamilton Resort, part of the Fiesta Hotel Group, feature 1,056 rooms.

Rose Hall Great House in Montego Bay.

A range of new and expanded attractions is also adding to Jamaica's dynamic profile. Themed to showcase the island's rich history and cultural heritage while at the same time being entertaining and informative. Opened last summer, Mystic Mountain in Ocho Rios is one of Jamaica's new environmentally friendly attractions, which has been a magnet for new and returning visitors.

Arrivals and Departures

Travelers across the U.S. will find that Jamaica is easy to get to, with service from the major airlines out of many major gateways across the U.S. Furthermore, Jet Blue is adding new non-stop service from New York to Montego Bay in May 2009, providing another option for travelers.

Moving swiftly on key elements of its 2009 Business Plan, Air Jamaica has announced a new schedule that focuses on core routes in the U.S., offering flight options that will be more convenient for travelers.

The airline's current and new schedule includes four daily flights from Fort Lauderdale to Jamaica, allowing South Florida passengers to have the flexibility of early morning arrivals and late evening departures. The new schedule also offers the only daily non-stop flights from New York to Jamaica, with two flights to Kingston and one to Montego Bay each day of the week. In addition, this new schedule gives New York travelers a chance to wake up in Barbados or Grenada with two non-stop flights each week to both destinations.

Additionally, Air Jamaica will allow passengers to check one additional bag free of charge on all flights between Fort Lauderdale and Jamaica through May 31, 2009.

Air Jamaica's new schedule totals 218 weekly flights to 13 destinations, with service between Jamaica and Toronto, New York (JFK), Chicago (O'Hare), Baltimore, Philadelphia, Orlando, Fort Lauderdale, Curacao and Nassau, as well as service between New York and Barbados and New York and Grenada. HALF MOON
 ROSE HALL, JAMAICA

Sandy, Sunny Family Flings

By Laurie Bain Wilson

If Mother Nature ever planned the perfect summer getaway with her kids she would choose the Caribbean for the tepid breezes that shimmy off the water, the sugar plantations that are non-caloric and the powder white strands with gentle turquoise seas.

The beauty of the Caribbean is that it appeals to sit-on-the-beach sun worshippers and those in the brood who are up to something more challenging like swimming fin to fin with a giant sea turtle.

The Cayman Islands are tops for diving—300 sites with over 20 dive operations, as is Bonaire, a coral reef itself, and Belize, a string of cays guarded by a 200-foot coral reef. Snorkelers especially love St. John, St. Croix, St. Lucia, Bonaire and the Caymans where the coral reefs are abundant, colorful and easy to reach.

Or, hoist up the sails on Antigua, the British Virgin Islands and St. Thomas where visitors find well-stocked marinas and opportunities to charter their own boat (with or without a crew.) Kids who love to windsurf will find fun on Aruba where gusty winds and glassy waters will have them flying across the surf.

And while many kids equate sightseeing with dusty museums and dark churches, the Caribbean's brand of touring is primarily done in the outdoors in bird sanctuaries, waterfalls, rain forests, beaches and mountains. Even tweens and teens, who would rather be grounded than go on vacation with mom and dad, will admit the Caribbean's a cool vacation getaway.

Designed for Families

The resorts in the Caribbean are especially hospitable in the summer months. Here, a sampling of some of the hottest resort packages and specials.

At Jolly Beach Resort & Spa kids stay for free at this all-inclusive property on Antigua. Bonuses: The Kidz and Teenz clubs, as well as an organized family program that features activities for parents and their kids to enjoy together (think stargazing on the beach, roasting marshmallows around a bonfire, kayaking and sailing lessons, tennis clinics, calypso dance lessons, Family Beach Olympics, and cooking classes.) All-inclusive rates begin at $128 per person, per night, double occupancy. Another incentive: The "Single Parents Think Jolly" program eliminates the supplement fee for a single parent sharing a room with up to two kids; the parent pays the per person double occupancy rate and kids stay for $65 per night (kids two and younger are free.) Tourism Cares for Gettysburg Travel – For A Cause

Volunteers come together to restore historic Civil War field hospital Canton, MA. Tourism Cares, a non-profit in the travel industry dedicated to preserving the travel experience for future generations will bring volunteers together April 16-18 to restore historic George Spangler Farm on the Gettysburg Battlefield for the Tourism Cares for Gettysburg restoration event.

The project, now in its 7th year, brings travel and tourism industry leaders together to restore historic sites in need of care and rejuvenation by getting their hands dirty to make a difference in the community and restore an important piece of American history. Registration is now open at www.tourismcares.org.

The George Spangler Farm was recently purchased by the Gettysburg Foundation to protect the historically significant site from private development. The 80-acre farm is located at what was the logistical center of the Union battlefield during the three-day Battle of Gettysburg in July 1863. During and after the battle, Spangler Farm served as a field hospital for both Confederate and Union soldiers. It was here that Confederate General Lewis Armistead, who led the climatic Pickett's Charge, died of the wounds he suffered on the last day of the battle.

Until last year, the site was privately owned and is in need of considerable restoration. Many of the fields, buildings and boundary lines associated with the property are still intact but in poor condition. Volunteers will work to bring back the authenticity of the farm, restoring original buildings, demolishing modern structures, landscaping, trail building, painting, cleaning and much more. The restoration of the property will further the Gettysburg Foundation's campaign to preserve Gettysburg to give visitors a sense of how the town actually appeared in 1863.

Since 2003, Tourism Cares has helped restore sites across the United States through the Tourism Cares for America Project. Beginning with Ellis Island, the project has also brought hundreds of volunteers to New Orleans before and after Hurricane Katrina, George Washington's Mount Vernon, the Mississippi Gulf Coast, and the tiny mining town of Virginia City, Nevada.

Tourism Cares is a 501c(3) non-profit public charity that benefits society by preserving the travel experience for future generations by awarding grants to natural, cultural and historic sites worldwide; by presenting academic and service-learning scholarships to students of hospitality and tourism; and by organizing volunteer efforts to restore tourism-related sites in need of care and rejuvenation. Gettysburg Address Memorial

For A Cause is an IRS registered non-profit organization whose mission is to energize and inspire people to make a difference in the lives of people with AIDS and anyone affected by breast cancer. They do this through their annual walking and cycling fundraising events. For the first time, they are opening the sale of their events to travel professionals and are offering 10% commission. In addition, they will offer residual commissions of 5% to an agent whose client books another tour the following year, and every consecutive year thereafter, without the use of the agent. Of course if a repeat client is booked, you would be entitled to the 10% commission.

Their events attract a wide range of participants including the socially conscious, active adventure vacationers, gay and lesbian travelers, and young and older travelers. Earning opportunities exist in addition to the commission for the booked trip; travelers will need to book transportation to and from the event, and may require pre and post hotel accommodations. Clients can also receive a $1,000 tax deduction when booking a certain trip.

The 2009 event is the Ireland Walk or Ride, from August 9 – 15, 2009. There are two different registration fees associated with the event. The first is a more "traditional" registration fee for a fundraising event, where the participant is asked to fundraise as they would for any walking or cycling event. The second option has a higher registration fee where the participant is not required to do any fundraising. The two registration fees are $1,650 and $2,650 respectively, and are both commissionable. Riders and walkers who register using the standard registration fee are asked to raise a suggested minimum of $1,000 in donations; on past events participants raised an average of $2,500 per person. None of the donations are used to pay for event expenses, so 100% of everything raised can go to the beneficiaries. Participants will be provided with an online fundraising page and a paper registration form. The second Registration fee of $2,650.00 does not require the participant to do any fundraising. This option provides the participant with a $1,000 tax deduction letter after completing the event. The registration fee does not include air or other means of transportation to and from the event, or pre and or post hotel accommodations or tips and alcohol. This is a 7-day event with 5-days of walking or cycling through the Connemara region of Ireland, just above Galway. Participants will stay in a tastefully renovated 16th century castle. Each day walkers and riders will make their way to a different and exciting location and back to the castle each night.

Accommodations are double occupancy and either 2-single beds or 1-double bed. All rooms have private bathrooms. Some rooms can accommodate 3 or 4 guests if traveling together. Single travelers will be paired with other single travelers of the same gender. Single supplement is $1,000 added to either registration option.

Appetites Grow for Culinary Travel

By Maria Lisella

It's not often that Vietnamese chefs fly across the globe to show off their cuisine, but next month two Vietnamese chefs are taking off to Mauritius to lead a 10-day cooking festival at the Labourdonnais Waterfront Hotel in Port Louis, May 10-14. This illustrates not only the emerging interest in Vietnamese cuisine, but gives testimony to the popularity of the combination of culinary curiosity and travel.

Food and Wine in Exotic Locales

The Labourdonnais is renowned for its food and wine festivals as it regularly hosts Michelin's three-star chefs from France, from Japan, Australia, Thailand, Malaysia, India and South Africa. Now Vietnam takes center stage.

Visit www.labourdonnais.com

Admittedly, Mauritius is a long way to go for American travelers to track down a culinary tour. But the world is taking notice of the passion for gastronomy.

In early March, best-selling cookbook author and food critic, Patricia Wells dined at the Press Club in Hanoi, Vietnam while on a culinary tour of the country. In 2010, Wells will relocate her cooking school from France to Vietnam for a special two-week stint in her first foray to Asia.

Just as music and lyrics go together, so do music and food, say some executive chefs. Christophe Gillino, the French-born Executive Chef at Four Seasons Hotel Cairo at Nile Plaza, has taken the music-food combination to new heights. Not only is he an accomplished culinary maestro, he's also a composer who recently produced a CD inspired by his time in the Middle East, "Sounds from the Desert." As guests dine in one of the restaurants overlooking the Nile, they'll have the unique experience of knowing that both their food and ambient music were prepared with care by Chef Gillino. "Food, Wine and Fast Cars" is the name of a Visit Italy program that focuses on the region of Emilia Romagna starting with the city of Bologna, world-famous for its gastronomy and for its chefs. Participants will discover the birthplace of Ferrari, Ducati, Lamborghini and Maserati and visit the Ferrari Gallery that features vintage road vehicles, Formula One cars, transmissions, engines and photographs. On this independent program, the food and wine are part of the experience of being in Bologna, Modena and Parma, home of the air-dried Parma ham, but clients will have a chance to visit with a Parmigiano Cheese Producer and a Prosciutto di Parma Producer while sampling the goods. The price ranges from $1,552 to $1,654 per person double for air arrangements only including a rental car. Call 800 255-3537; E-mail info@visititalytours.com; www.visititalytours.com

Not far from Italy are the eight Portuguese wines that were listed in Wine Enthusiast's 2008 "100 Best Buys."

MAURITIUS

Four of these wines scored 90 or above and four Portuguese wines were also listed in Wine Spectator's "Top 100" – all of which scored 90 or above. Much of the wine production takes place along the Douro River so from May 30 through October 3rd (every year), real steam trains travel along the scenic Douro, powered by a Henschel steam engine. The historic train runs on the Régua-Pinhão-Tua route and back every Saturday. Visit www.cp.pt

"It is said that three major kinds of cuisine exist in the world; Turkish, Chinese, and French," so says the guide on All About Turkey website that focuses on all wonderful things Turkish. Besides several programs to Italy, FIT Tours is selling an 11-day program that is an extensive food and wine tour of Turkey with just seven departures. Priced at $3,299 per person with transatlantic airfare included from New York, the package was designed to accommodate small groups at four-star properties, with 26 meals, and the long list of FIT amenities agents are used to passing along to clients. They say some of Turkey's best wines are produced in Tekirdag so participants will visit the Umurbey Winehouse, a touch of Provence in the Dardanelles, a visit to Bozcaada and its vineyards. Redondo Beach

A Southern Californian Oasis

By Doug Cooke, CTC

DOUG COOKE

Think of a typical Southern California beach community and what comes to mind? Great beaches (obviously), a fishing pier, sightseeing options, great restaurants, ocean front hotels, an outdoor ice skating rink on the beach (top)...wait, did he say ice staking rink on the beach? This is just one of the unique attractions that makes the Redondo Beach community a special place for a vacation or meeting venue.

During my recent press visit to Redondo Beach, I was impressed by the passion and pride the locals have for this special oasis in California. This is the kind of place where it seems as though everyone knows each other; they are all working together for the common good and to keep this place as pristine and appealing as it is now.

Located just 10 miles south of LAX or about the same distance northwest of SNA, Redondo Beach is the quintessential Southern California beach community. Bordered by Palos Verdes to the south and Hermosa Beach to the north, this city's personality is likewise somewhere in between its pretentious southern neighbor and bohemian northern one.

Where to Stay

One distinct feature of Redondo Beach is the availability of name brand accommodations right in the heart of the action. JAX FAX stayed at the Portofino Hotel and Yacht Club

PORTOFINO HOTEL

(left) which features an enviable location bordered by the Yacht Club in front and the Pacific Ocean in back. A member of the Noble House Hotels and Resorts, this historic hotel has just undergone an $11 million refurbishment. Ocean view rooms on the back side of the hotel are treated to amazing sunsets and the sounds of harbor seals right outside your balcony lulling you to sleep each night. Guest rooms feature a contemporary nautical theme. JAX FAX stayed in an ocean side suite featuring a separate living room with a wet bar, plasma TV, foldout sofa and see thru fireplace. The bedroom had a four poster wrought iron bed, desk and plasma TV. The bath had two sinks, clawfoot tub, walk-in shower and all the usual amenities. Call 310-379-8481; www.hotelportofino.com

Directly across the street from the beach and pier is the Crowne Plaza Redondo Beach (right). This 339-room hotel is highlighted by the spa facility, an expansive swimming pool, a tennis court, and a deck area all located on the Harbor Terrace with magnificent views over the pier and marina. Guests have access to Gold's Gym next door. Guestrooms feature seven layer bed linens, a sleep CD as well as the usual array of fine hotel amenities. www.crowneplaza.com

CROWNE PLAZA

What to Do

With its waterfront and marina location, Redondo beach offers access to numerous watersports and equipment rentals including: ocean kayaking, whale watching excursions, high speed thrill ride boats, jet ski rentals, glass bottom boats, surfing, fishing and the aforementioned seasonal ice skating on the beach, open from late November through mid January. Hotels make bikes available for excursions on the beachfront "strand" stretching from Redondo to Santa Monica.

The SEA Lab is a hands-on coastal science education center in Redondo Beach that offers free and low cost programs for explorers of all ages. This aquatic center offers displays of the fish and other creatures found in the local waters as well as an outdoor touch tank.

There are numerous shopping options including shops on the pier, unique shops in downtown Redondo and the South Bay Galleria Mall.

Where to Eat

Dining options are numerous and varied. Several recommended places include: Polly's on the Pier Coffee Shop located on its own pier and serving great morning fare with ocean views. On the Rocks is a waterfront sports bar with 57 TVs and an outdoor patio. Baleen, located marina side at the Portofino Hotel is fine dining at its best, with both indoor and outdoor dining (the latter around firepits). This is just a small sampling of the hundreds of dining options located in and around Redondo Beach.

How to get there

JetBlue will begin flying out of Los Angeles International Airport with daily nonstop service to Boston and New York's John F. Kennedy International Airport in May.

The long-planned but delayed service, which is expected to begin in late spring, could help ignite a transcontinental fare war at LAX, especially for flights to Boston.

Two carriers -- American and United -- now offer four daily flights from LAX to Boston's Logan International Airport. A third airline, Virgin America, is scheduled to begin Boston service next month, with introductory fares starting at $149 one-way. Four airlines currently operate 26 nonstop flights a day from LAX to New York.

At LAX, JetBlue is expected to use Terminal 6, a location that just a few months ago was occupied by start-up Virgin America. That airline has moved to larger quarters at Terminal 3. Visit www.JetBlue.com

Meeting Facilities

In addition to the meeting facilities offered by both the Portofino and Crown Plaza Hotels, Redondo Beach has its own Performing Arts Center, which is available for private events. For more information on Redondo Beach contact the Chamber of Commerce at www.redondochamber.org

Caribbean Week Circles the Wagons in 2009

"We're excited to bring Caribbean Week back to New York City after our 2008 hiatus," said Hugh Riley, interim secretary general of the Caribbean Tourism Organization (CTO) and co-chief operating officer for the Caribbean Tourism Development Company (CTDC).

"This year's program promises to engage consumers, the Diaspora community, trade professionals, meeting planners and media by providing valuable destination information in the form of seminars, a media marketplace, an incentive showcase, gala celebrations and interactive cultural events, many of which are open to the public." Caribbean Week in New York will follow the Second Annual Caribbean Tourism Summit (ACTS) in Washington, D.C. on June 9-10, 2009.

Without sounding grave, Riley addressed the media at a press conference last month regarding plans to create strategic marketing alliances and the economics of tourism to provide steps the region ought to take to protect the industry from the inevitable dips in arrivals expected in 2009.

Hotels, he said are responding quickly with aggressive deals. Riley said a $60 million fund, representing direct contributions from governments combined with taxes, would be tapped to further bolster the effort.

For now, agents and consumers will have a plethora of Super Deals, some of which will only be available during Caribbean Week. A new Incentive Travel Showcase will be added to the Week's events.

Some events are free, but others require registration.

South African Tourism Appoints Trade Manager

South African Tourism appointed Virginia Dionisio to the position of Trade Relations Manager.

Dionisio comes to South African Tourism from Lion World Tours, where she was the Director for Sales USA.

Prior to joining the Lion World team Virginia spent 27 years with South African Airways, beginning in the Accounting Department and rising to Director for Sales Development for the North East of the United States. She currently sits on the National Board of the Association for the Promotion of the Tourism to Africa as their Chief Financial Officer.

Great Events

"We are delighted that Virginia has joined our team," said Sthu Zungu, President, South African Tourism, North America. "She brings an invaluable skill set to our organization, in addition to her extensive airline and tour operator experience, she also has first-hand, in-depth knowledge of South Africa and the Southern African region."

South Africa sponsors a major trade show each year called INDABA. INDABA is one of the largest tourism marketing events on the African calendar .

Last year's event shattered its 2007 record with more than 13,200 delegates (with headcount for the final day still to come in) attending this year's show compared to last year's 12,340, so confirming Indaba's status as one of the top three in the world and certainly Africa's top travel trade show. This year INDABA will take place in Durban.

French Tourism's Rendezvous with PATA

Alot is riding on a concept that Pacific Asia Travel Association (PATA) events will further strengthen relationships between the national government tourism organization of France and key players in the travel and tourism industry across the Asia Pacific region.

That's the view of Thierry Baudier, Chief Executive of Maison de la France also known as the French Government Tourist Office in the United States (FGTO).

"The partnership initiated with PATA offers French tourism a great platform to develop a network of new partners in the area, as well as benefiting from the market intelligence and the expertise of the Association and the possibility of initiating joint marketing activities with PATA members," he says.

While the U.S. remains a major market for France, during the past ten years Maison de la France has reinforced its presence in the Pacific Asia region by establishing offices in China, India, Japan, Australia, South Korea and Singapore, implementing strong marketing plans in these burgeoning new markets.

"We are doing our utmost to revamp and promote a new image of France, especially at a time when we are launching a new tourism brand. Action plans and marketing campaigns are being implemented to increase our market share in such a dynamic part of the globe," adds Thierry Baudier.

As part of this strategy to rejuvenate its tourism industry, the FGTO has created a new France brand that includes a new logo and tagline.

Foreign Independent Tours Shares Secrets of Success with Agents

By Maria Lisella

Diane Panasci arrived at Foreign Independent Tours after having been a travel agent and travel packager for 10 years. She is the Manager of Marketing and Product Development and works on product development, marketing and making sure the FIT product line gets noticed in the consumer and trade presses.

JF: How does a tour operator that specializes in Egypt ride out current event calamities that are out of your control?

FIT: I feel this was an isolated instance. Lamentable, but it could have happened anywhere in the world. Prior to this there had not been an incident in Egypt in quite some time. We have not received any cancellations, we do not see this last incident at the café as a threat to operations or to clients' vacations. We still have groups scheduled to depart in May and September, and independent departures daily.

JF: What is FIT's best selling point?

FIT: All of us are former travel agents. We understand the needs of the agency community. We all have our specialties, but share all resources. My skill is marketing. Lisa once worked for a large corporate travel agency before we enlisted her services. She is very well versed in dealing with upscale clientele and loves to sell Italy and Malta. Sheila is our South Africa Specialist who can help with your Adventure and Experiential travel needs. Pam is our resident Egypt specialist. She guides 2-3 large groups a year to Egypt. Pam has been more than 12 times and knows all the best sights and sounds of this destination.

JF: Can you tell us about FIT's ground operations?

FIT: We have a ground operation of 1,300 people calling ahead from site to site to check on congestion and safety – they won't bring us to one area until our clients are going to go free and clear. We use mini vans in a very flexible manner so if there is a disruption we can adjust to situations very quickly. I have always felt most comfortable with FIT Tours; the staff is very aware of people's enjoyment.

I like the way they keep track of people and take care of them. When I visited Italy, I went under cover as a tourist so I could really see how clients are going to be handled.

JF: How has the economy affected bookings to exotic locales?

FIT: No one wants to spend money for less than an amazing trip. Backpackers and very low budget travelers seem to have vanished; those booking now are upgrading as we cater to mid-range pricing. What we have issues with is the very late booking trend; that is a problem.

JF: How can agents take advantage of "white labeling"?

FIT: With about 85% of our bookings originating with agents, they represent a strong portion of our sales. To stay competitive, agents have to deliver services. We encourage them to transform themselves into travel packagers. They have to be more than just order takers; they have to develop products. We now have five to eight agencies we work with in this way.

JF: What is the best way to frame FIT's offerings?

FIT: Our itineraries should be viewed as samples; deviations are encouraged and accommodated. We can build a specific itinerary just for the agency, as if it were their own.

For instance, if you look under South Africa on our website, Trip 105 is called Big Heart Safari, an exclusive tour operated by Elite World Tours, we helped them to create it, we advertise it on our site, but the agency gets the business. We can place agents' exclusive tours on our website that will click through to the agency's own website when customers check it out. We wish more agents would take advantage of this strategy to grow their businesses.

JF: And booking patterns?

FIT: Six months ago people were booking last minute packages. Now people are booking ahead. Travelers are holding their bookings with a deposit to lock in some good discounted air rates, but booking 6 months out. The economic crisis might be affecting this pattern. Travelers are getting more savvy. And they only want to book incredible travel deals. Not cheap but with lots of value added and unusual.

JF: Any new destinations being added to FIT's portfolio?

FIT: With a high repeat clientele of about 70%, we have had to develop other destinations, but our first destination is Egypt, which we are best known for, second, Italy and third, Malta. Most of our Italy trips visit Tuscany, Umbria, Sicily and the Italian Riviera; we may add ski programs in the Italian Alps or in Abruzzo in 2010.

We have clients who have been to Egypt, Malta and Italy and now want to go to Greece. We have a ground operator who handles that, so we are putting together something like that right now.

JF: Any other advice for agents?

FIT: Customer service skills are the most important thing we have to offer. They are the most important element to growing any business. Online bookings do not deliver customer service. If you sell online you are making sales. If you book though human contact you are creating customer commitment. Creating a long term relationship. This may seem like an old-fashioned concept, but it still has indescribable value. Call 800-248-3487; www.fittours.com
